Mud Scares Auto Party On Tour Of State

"Bad roads." That's what caused Gov. Brumbaugh and his party out touring the state to change their itinerary at Greensbzurg yesterday and go direct to Pittsburgh, cutting off this section of Westmoreland and Washington counties. This in face of the fact that the state highway department was turned loose on the roads over which the Governor's party was scheduled to travel and instructed to put them in perfect shape.

The roads from Greensburg to Monesen are better now than they have been in months, yet they were not fit for the party to travel over. Monessen of course, suffered no disappointment at the failure of the party to arrive, for they refused to come through this town of 25,000 people, when the distance to Washington would have been practically the same and the road brick through the town. Local people therefore were not disappointed, and have no kick except as the road to Greensburg effects this community.

It is a well known fact at the State Highway department that we have been trying to get this road improved, so that we could have a good road to our county seat, but so far we have failed and very little attention was paid to it until it was announced that a party headed by the Governor would pass over it. Then it became necessary to make radical improvements of a temporary nature. Then on account of a slight rain the party failed to pass over as scheduled. This alone is sufficient evidence that this road needs improving. Not for the purpose of conveying state officials on a tour of pleasure or inspection, but for the welfare of all the people. Thousands of bushels of grain are produced annually along this route, together with great train loads of fruit, vegetables, live stock and poultry, and it is necessary that this road be permanently improved among one of the first in the state in order to get this produce to market.

"Bad roads" can't be offered as an excuse when a farmer wants to haul his grain to customers. "Bad roads" won't get the eggs and butter to market. People along this road can't cut off a few miles by going somewhere else and then forget about it. If the farmer makes an engagement to be in town with his produce on a certain day, he can't offer the excuse "bad roads" and stay away. If he does, he will lose out. So the road to Greensburg does need improving. It needs it at the earliest possible moment, and there can be no reasonable excuse offered for delay. The state has the assets and money is plentiful.

The people of this section of Westmoreland county are willing to bear any disappointment suffered by the failure of the Governor's party to come if the road is improved.

Mothers' Pensions

After a delay of four months, checks payable to 57 needy mothers of Westmoreland county and issued by the commissioners last Tuesday have been paid by the county controller.

The total amount of money that was due amounted to $895.50. Although the state legislature had appropriated funds for the Mothers' Pension Bureau last winter, no payment was made since May. A clause contained in the law required the signature of the state supervisor of Mothers' Pensions and since none had been appointed, the state treasurer refused to issue vouchers. Since that the appointment has been made. Half of the money is paid by the state and half by the county. In some counties the county commissioners paid their share, but in Westmoreland, none of the money was forthcoming. Many of the beneficiaries were left in destitute circumstances throughout the summer. There were seven persons added to the list of pensioners during the month of September.

Entertains Class

The Ladies Adult Bible class of the Baptist church were entertained last evening at the home of Mrs. Charles Peterson at 675 Reed avenue. The home was tastefully decorated for the occasion with potted plants. Forty-two members of the class were present and all report a most enjoyable evening. A musical and literary program was the feature of the entertainment and included piano solos by the Misses Helen and Elsie Stahlnecker and Mrs. James Boag and solos by Mrs. Lee Thomas and Mrs. George Sherwin. Mrs. D. Harris gave several interesting readings and short addresses were made by Superintendent of the Sunday school Harry Williams and the teacher of the class, Ernest Simons. Mrs. Peterson served a dainty lunch for the guests.

Must Toss Coin

Notice has just been served on A. N. Shuster of Monessen, that he must chance with L. P. Rose of Monesen for the Prohibition nomination for the office of Justice of the Peace, the vote being a tie. Both men must appear before the commissioners on Oct. 8th, at which time they will toss a coin to see who is entitled to the nomination.

It seems that neither man aspired to the nomination, but one vote was cast for each one, and the returns made accordingly. Mr. Shuster being the Republican nominee, it is barely possible that he will go to Greensburg on the above date to appear before the commissioners, and in this event, Mr. Rose can go it alone on the Prohibition ticket.

Kindergarten

An effort is being put forth to organize an up to date kindergarten here in charge of a competent teacher. A number of parents have expressed their desire to enroll their children and more will follow if the opportunity is given. If all those interested will send their names to this office, together with the name, number and age of the children, it will greatly assist in promoting the enterprise.

There are hundreds of children here between the age of four and seven years that could gain much by attending school of this kind, and indications point to a successful undertaking. The terms will be made as reasonable as possible.

—The Ladies Adult Bible class of the First M. E. church held their regular monthly business and social meeting last evening in the church.

Advertising Pays

T. W. Kisor, proprietor of the Spring Farm Dairy, has just finished marketing one of the greatest peach crops ever produced in this section. His orchard bore him more than 2,000 bushels and a ready market was found in Monessen and vicinity.

Mr. Kisor's time was so occupied with the duties connected with his dairy that he was forced to sell much of his fruit on the tree. He inserted a small advertisement in this paper, from which he sold several hundred bushels of his peaches. There was a great response. Some walked to the farm with sacks and baskets, while others went in automobiles and buggies, picking their own peaches and paying a nominal price of 50 cents a bushel. It was a harvest for many poor people who would not have been able to get fruit at the regular retail prices.

Mr. Kisor's orchard is very young yet, and should he get a full crop next year, it is likely that he will have 4,000 bushels.

Need More Money

Greensburg is $500 short in order to make its Civic and Industrial day a success. When the affair was planned, it was reckoned that it would take $1,500 in order to make it a success. A committee was appointed and a canvass of the town made and only $1,000 could be gotten together. It will be necessary for the citizens to come across with $500 more or the original plans will have to be modified.

Exhibit Opens Today

The Elsen Art Exhibit will open at the new High school building this afternoon from 4 to 5 oclock and from 7 to 9 this evening. The exhibit will continue Thursday and Friday of this week and at the same hours. Two hundred reproductions of the best paintings of celebrated artists will be on display. These paintings are reproduced in sepia, carbon and some are hand colored. The pictures have been shown throughout the country and are recognized as the best collection ever gotten together. It would take a trip to many countries to see the originals of these paintings. A small admission fee is being charged for the exhibit, and this money will be used in securing pictures for the local school rooms. Orders will also be taken for any pictures on display.

Mistaken Identity

J. A. Sheetz drove through from Greensburg last night and occasioned quite a bit of humor as he traveled along the road. Mr. Sheetz had his automobile gaily decorated with flags and bunting and children climbed on fences and chicken coops and waved their handkerchiefs and greeted him with "Hello Governor." Occasionally Mr. Sheetz would bow politely and pass on, but when a farmer stepped out in front of the car gesticulating wildly, Mr. Sheetz had to stop and explain that he wasn't the Governor, and that he had decorated his machine in honor of the Governor's party, but that a change had been made owing to "bad roads" and the party went direct through to Pittsburgh, the old man remarked "how does it come you can get along the road and the Governor can't. Mr. Sheetz replied "well I have more nerve, I suppose" and drove on.

Violated Law

The first prosecution under the new Meat Hygiene Law has been ordered against John Snyder, an Altoona butcher, by the State Livestock Sanitary Board.

Snyder conducts a stand in the Altoona market house and is charged with exhibiting meat exposed to flies and other bactria carrying insects. The law also forbids butchers to permit prospective purchasers to handle meat, says State Veterinarian, C. J. Marshall, and violators will be prosecuted. The latter states that it is a dangerous and unnecessary practice not to screen meat and that most persons will not eat it if they knew that flies had been crawling over it or that it had been handled by the public.

A Careless Expression

"He's only a hunky." We often hear that expression, but oh, how it grates upon the ear of intelligence, and how it strikes into the heart of a man whose pulse beats in sympathy with all humanity. We all have our social preferences, a love for church, home and state, but few of us can reach down into the mire and take the hand of a brother and raise him from his filth and start him on the road to better things. We pause possibly for a moment, and then pass on and forget the heartaches of the fallen brother.

"He's only a hunky." We satisfy ourselves thus and pass on. But did you ever stop to think that that 'hunky' might be the father of a house full of starving babies, and that their comfort depends upon the energies and efforts of that father, and who, if they stopped to inquire, would not give alms to a poor child of an unfortunate father.

This morning standing at the local station we saw the stiff and pulled form of an injured man removed from an ambulance. As he was being carried to the car that was to bear him to a city hospital, we saw the wife draw aside the cover from over the almost helpless form and plant on his pallad face a farewell kiss. Then she walked away sobbing like a child. This man, some would say was "only a hunky," but he was the husband of a woman who loved him with as much devotion as any woman can have for the one she has sworn to love. The thought came to us that he who goes is happier than the one he leaves behind, no matter what the journey be.

As the train pulled out from the station and this woman walked down the street, with every step a sob, one could not but think of the hardships that some people must endure without the tender sympathies of friends and the delicate hands of those near and dear. This is only a concrete example. We observe similar sights almost daily as the trains pull out from the station, but how often do people glance at the cot and exclaim "Oh, it's only a hunky." Yet when we stop to think how the great human heart can be touched by a chain of sympathy, how glad we would be to offer alms to some one of these unfortunates. Where is there a man who doesn't love to feed a starving baby? What did this town do for unfortunate Belgium? A lot of folks have no babies of their own; others think they have too many; many homes have cribs empty and dolls dust covered; many homes never had even a crib or a doll and many people haven't lived up to their opportunities near enough to have a home, but everybody has a spot in the heart that aches now and then and that will keep on aching unless it can cuddle a helpless, dimpled mite of mortality.

"He's only a hunky," but he's a human being whose flesh is subject to the same aches and pains as yours, and whose heart beats as tender and loving a sympathy for those near to him as does yours, and we want to urge you that when you hear such expressions as the above, that it is your duty to walk up to the one who is so thoughtless and place your hand on his shoulder and suggest that this individual be considered as one of God's children the same as you or I, and that the hand of fellowship and brotherly love be extended to soften the thought that "he's only a hunky." This lesson taught at every opportunity, Monessen will soon become a better place in which to live, and we will be in closer bondage with our brothers from across the waters.

That Far Famed Trip

The trip of Gov. Brumbaugh through this end of the state is now a matter of history. The object of the trip or the expense attached is not yet known. Whether these two important issues ever will be made public, remains to be seen and heard. There were few ostentations. The roads were put in good shape for the party to travel over and we suppose the trip was very pleasant to those traveling, but the onlooker will inquire as to what of a constructive nature will come out of it.

When Themistocles was asked by his host at a dinner party to entertain the guest by playing the lute, he replied that he could not play the fiddle, but that he could make a small town a great city. We have in this nation many politicians who are good "fiddlers," but they cannot make a small town a great city. We are over-run with orators who can play upon the passions of the people, but they can't put brick and mortar together.

We have campaign orators whose pledges and promises sound like golden harps as they explain what a great interest they have in the dear people, but after election, it is a different story. Twelve thousand dollars is said to be the amount that will be distributed throughout Westmoreland county within the next two years for road building, and this is the administration through which the State Highway department received a fumigating.

Let those who hunger and thirst for power understand that the highest glory of a statesman is to construct, and that it is better for a man that he should build a public highway than that he should become Governor of a state, and that he start a plow than that he become the author of a law. The true test of statesmanship is the plow and hammer, so let those who would govern, first build.

OFFICERS MAKE IMPORTANT ARREST

In the arrest of James Maxwell, otherwise known as John Hall, John Hart, J. C McWilliams and Robert Hays, Charleroi police believe they have effected one of the most important captures in months. Maxwell was arrested at about midnight by Chief C. W. Albright and Policeman James Murphy of Charleroi, at the Zwick hotel in Finleyville. Maxwell is wanted not only in Charleroi, but in Youngstown, Ohio, Monongahela and Sharon for passing worthless checks.

Maxwell came to Charleroi Friday after successful ventures in his sort of business in numerous towns. He posed as a well driller and forthwith hired a man to help him with his supposed contracting work. A check was written and cashed, following his usual system. Maxwell then got away.

Monday when the facts of the swindle became known, the police got on the trail. They trailed him from town to town until they ascertained that he was quartered at the Zwick hotel in Finleyville. They found that his door was locked. With the properly authorized help they had the door opened. One confronted Maxwell with a revolver and the other attached the handcuffs. He was taken to Charleroi in the police patrol and lodged in the lockup.

Maxwell is a man over six feet tall and is possessed of a splendid physique. He will be held until the police learn more from Ohio. Information has been lodged against him in a number of instances in Youngstown, and it is likely he will be taken back there after the police get through with him here. His checks were written mostly for small amounts, ranging from $5 to $15.

The Record in Monessen is a Unique One

If the reader has a "bad back" or any kidney ills and is looking for an effective kidney medicine, better depend on the remedy endorsd by people you know. Doan's Kidney Pills have given great satisfaction in such cases. Monessen citizens testify to this. Here is a case of it:

H. R. Wilbur, 171 McKee avenue, Monessen, says. "I contracted a heavy cold which affected my kidneys. My back was sore and lame all the time and I had to have help to turn in bed My whole body was like a board. I often had to have someone help dress me. Shooting pains darted through my body and I couldn't do my work. My body became bloated. The secretions were profuse in passage and contained sediment. I had dizzy spells and hot flashes, and I was miserable in every way. I doctored for years but didn't improve. The first box of Doan's Kidney Pills relieved me and two boxes practically cured me. Now and then I take Doan's Kidney Pills as a tonic, and give them credit for keeping me well."

TEAM PLEASED COACHES

The University of Pittsburgh football team fully came up to expectations in the opening encounter with Westminster college at Forbes field, and although Coach Glenn S. Warner used no less than 30 members of his big squad in the trying-out process, a scoer of 32 to 0 was rolled up. Westminster's team was about as strong as the usual crowd turned out at New Wilmington and put up a game and lasting fight. Pitt, however, in superior condition and with an attack that was irresistable, swept their opponents before them on every play. At no time was Westminster dangerous.

The next game is with the Annapolis Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., and a hard battle is looked for. Navy was defeated by Pitt last year and tied the previous year. This is the fourth annual game at Annapolis and the Middies have a healthy respect for the gridiron prowess of the Pitt team. They are sure to be primed for the battle, and it will be one of the season's hardest engagements for Coach Warner's men.

The next big home game is with the Carlisle Indians in Pittsburgh, October 16th. While the Indians all have great respect for their former mentor, nothing would please them more than to defeat Pitt, and the locals will have to be on the alert all the time. The Indians showing against Lehigh indicates that they are stronger than last year, when the material was all green. The Penn game is at Philadelphia, October 23rd and Warner is working with this in view all the time. No Freshmen are eligible for this game and this fact gives the old warrior some new problems to face.

The Bellefonte academy team plays the Freshmen eleven at Forbes field this Saturday, while the Varsity is away at Annapolis.

Carl Weber's Surprise

By EDITH V. ROSS

When the great European war broke out Carl Weber, whose father was a baker in Berlin being a member of the reserve, was given ten days to prepare to leave for the front. The reason of his having been given so long a time when there was such a hurry for troops was that the unmarried members of his corps were recommended to take wives before going to the war in order that the depletion of men consequent upon the dangers of the service might be balanced by a crop of children.

Carl chose for a partner for life—or more likely for death—Gretchen, the daughter of Hans Kopp, who kept a grocery store next door to the bakery. Hans was twenty years old; Gretchen was seventeen There was no time for courting—indeed, no time for either groom or bride to deliberate on the subject. Carl's father made the proposition to Gretchen's father that the youngsters be married, and since both men considered that the marriage was a duty to the fatherland a marriage it must be

Neither Carl nor Gretchen was averse to a marriage. Being young they did not consider the fact that the young husband would probably be killed or die of disease. A great many soldiers who go to war return Why not Carl? So they were married and passed a week's honeymoon together, which slid away very quickly, and Carl was obliged to tear himself from his bride to be entrained for Belgium. The last he saw of his wife she was standing on the sidewalk weeping

Then for the first time Carl realized what it all meant. It was terribly serious. The first mowing down of men by modern machinery had taken place, and the death toll was terrible. On the way to the front he met trainloads of wounded, and the sight sickened him. What a change in every way had come over him! A fortnight before he had not thought of either war or marriage. Now he was deep in both. How he wished he could return, take his weeping wife in his arms and remain with her forever! But, no, very likely he would never see her again, while she—what would become of her? Would she weep for him throughout eternity? We are prone to picture those loved ones from whom we are separated as we last saw them. Carl throughout his army service never thought of Gretchen but that she was standing on the sidewalk looking after him through her tears.

Carl escaped death, but after awhile was severely wounded. He was taken to the rear and placed in a hospital. There he lingered for a long while and at last began to mend. He was able to be about long before he was fit to return to the front, so he was permitted to go home for the rest of the period necessary for him to be prepared to go forth to be shot at again.

Carl wrote to his parents and his wife that he would be at home on a certain day He did not like to surprise her, for he feared that the joy of meeting him suddenly might have a deleterious effect upon her The day he arrived his father met him at the station, embraced him, kissing him on both cheeks, then led the way to his delivery wagon, which was waiting, for Carl was not equal to walking home.

Now, it so happened that the stork visited the house with a ten pound boy the very day of Carl's arrival. Indeed, the little fellow was just fifty-five minutes old when the train bearing his father rolled into the station. It had been arranged that Carl should be kept in ignorance of the fact till the last possible moment in order that he might have a pleasant surprise. Gretchen had continued to live with her parents, and his father was to take him home and await notice just when he might be introduced to his wife and child.

The idea of being a father had never entered the young soldier's head. For months he had remembered his wife in tears, and he was possessed with one idea—to get home and dry those tears. When his father drove up before the bakery over which he lived he suggested to Carl to go in and meet his mother before meeting his wife. Respect for parents is so strong in Germany that Carl consented, but after giving the old woman a hasty kiss he broke away and hobbled to the next house to see his wife.

Finding no one in the shop below, he pulled himself upstairs by means of a ballister and tried to open the door. It was locked. He tried the doors to the other chambers and found them all open, but no one was in any of the rooms. Carl began to be frightened. He had asked his father innumerable questions about Gretchen, and the old man had seemed noncommittal.

He rapped at the door of his wife's room again, then listened. He heard a hoarse sound as if a deaf mute was trying to speak. He knocked again and heard a man's voice say, "You may come in in about ten minutes."

Great heavens! A man in his wife's bedroom, telling him when he might come in Surely something frightful had happened. Weak as he was, he paced the hall like a caged tiger; then suddenly the door was thrown open, and there, lying in bed, was Gretchen, on her arm taking his first breakfast a baby boy, and, instead of tears coursing down her cheeks, on her lips was the happiest smile that had ever been there

The doctor and the grandmother retired and left the family alone together.

MOTHER OF SCHOOL GIRL

Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Daughter's Health.

Plover, Iowa.—"From a small child my 13 year old daughter had female weakness. I spoke to three doctors about it and they did not help her any. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had been of great benefit to me, so I decided to have her give it a trial. She has taken five bottles of the Vegetable Compound according to directions on the bottle and she is cured of this trouble. She was all run down when she started taking the Compound and her periods did not come right. She was so poorly and weak that I often had to help her dress herself, but now she is regular and is growing strong and healthy."—Mrs. MARTIN HELVIG, Plover, Iowa.

Hundreds of such letters expressing gratitude for the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has accomplished are constantly being received, proving the reliability of this grand old remedy.

If you are ill do not drag along and continue to suffer day in and day out but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a woman's remedy for woman's ills.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Judge Hoke of Sandy Bend

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1913, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate

When the court at Sandy Bend had been opened in due and legal form Judge Hoke assumed what he considered a proper judicial dignity and said:

"This ar' a case such as we hev never had afore us before, but we think we kin straighten out the kinks and do justice to all. Three days ago that red headed critter over thar, who calls hisself Tom Jones, come humpin' down the trail from Big Find to ax if thar was any law in this kentry and to holler fur justice. He had a wife up thar at Big Find. He went home one evenin' to find that she had skipped with another man. The name of that man was Abe Skinner, and that's him over thar with the broken nose

"What ginerally happens out yere in this land o' gold and hard times when our wife runs away? If we ain't mighty glad of it, which we mostly be, we git ou to her tracks and foller 'em till we overtake her. If she's alone we take her by the ear and lead her back. If she's with a critter we pop him over. Thar ain't no law in the case, but the custom is purty well known. The man who steals another man's wife expects to be popped by the injoored husband, and he likewise expects to pop that same injoored husband if he gits the chance.

"Tom Jones didn't pursoo. Thar was the broad trail before him, and he had guns and knives and a hoss, but he hadn't the sand. He jest comes a humpin' down yere to holler fur the law and shriek fur jestice and to git all men, includin' this court, down on him fur his doggoneness His wife, who ar' that female over thar with a mouth as big as a bar'l, had gone off with Abe Skinner as aforesaid and had him headed for this very camp. As they flies from Big Find they meets up with Jim Hope, who's the cuss over thar with the game leg and one eye gone. Jim he stops 'em and sez:

"'Abe Skinner, what you got thar?'

"'A female.'

"'Who is she?'

"'Tom Jones' wife.'

"'And what you a-doin' with her?'

"'A-runnin' away to Sandy Bend.'

"'Then you needn't go no further. I've been wantin' a wife fur the last six months, and I reckon I'll take her off your hands!'

"Waal," continued his honor, "Jim Hope he had his gun plump on Abe Skinner and his finger on the trigger, and Abe had to give in. This yere court can't l'arn that the woman objected to the change. On the contrary, thar is evidence that she didn't keer a continental, as Jim Hope is a better lookin' critter than Abe Skinner. The couple heads this way by the trail, while Abe Skinner takes a short cut and arrives fustly and comes to me to yell fur jestice. Thar's two fellers yellin' fur jestice and a third one with the woman. The woman gits yere in doo time, along with Jim Hope, and over by the creek they meets Joe Scott, who stops to say:

"'Jim Hope, I was jest goin' out to hunt fur one.'

"'What you mean?'

"'I want a female woman fur a wife, and you git down and skip!'

"Thar was a gun on Jim, and he had to give the woman up This court can't l'arn that she shed a tear or did any kickin', but Jim he comes whoopin' down to me and wants law and jestice and all that. That makes three of 'em a-wantin', and so I tells the constable to arrest Joe and the woman Yere's four men and one woman, and the law 'pears to be purty badly tangled up. Fustly, Tom Jones, is this woman your wife?"

"Sartin she is," answered Tom

"Hev you got the dockyments to prove it?"

"No, but I married her in the Injun Territory a y'ar ago."

"Waal, this court has nothin' to do with the Injun Territory, and that marriage won't stand yere unless the woman wants it to. Mrs. Jones, as I will call you, what made ye run away from Tom?"

"Got tired of him," replied the woman.

"Do you prefer Jim Hope or Joe Scott?"

"I ain't pertickler."

"That makes the case easier. Hank Williams, stand up."

Hank stood up and proved to be a middle aged man of decent appearance.

"Hank, d'ye want a wife?" asked the court.

"I dew," was the reply

"Then I'll marry ye to this woman."

"Hank Williams, will ye take this deluded woman to be yer lawful wife?"

"You bet!"

"And will ye cherish and defend her and keep all the other critters off?"

"I will!"

"Mrs. Jones, ye hear what the critter sez. Ye may be married, and ye may not be, but this court ain't a-goin' to run any chances of any future rows and killin's Will ye take Hank for better or wuss?"

"Reckon so."

"And will do yer best?"

"Yes."

"Then jine hands. I pronounce ye man and wife, and durn my hide, which ar' the hide of this court, I'll turn out and help hunt down any human critter as tries to come between you and Hank! I now consider that jestice has been done to all hands and all around, and it only remains fur the happy bridegroom to head the purcession to my saloon and treat all hands over the happy event, and thar won't be no ill feelin's and nuthin' to find fault with."

DESIRES OF FARM WOMEN

Evidently Not All Are Satisfied With the Condition of Affairs as Existing Today.

Among the requests and suggestions for government aid—which I quote literally—were calls for a law to make a farmer go shares with his wife, or else pay her one dollar a day for her work; for fireless cookers, vacuum cleaners, washing machines, dishwashing machines, teachers with horse sense, a better grade of tea, coffee, and dried fruit at country stores, a traveling government doctor, a traveling government nurse, electric lights and trolley lines for isolated farms, cook books, books of fiction, traveling schools and traveling libraries, illustrated lectures, "moovies" and phonograph concerts sent around to the farms, a better knowledge of rural sanitation, better supervision of children at the "little red schoolhouse," both in point of morals and health, a system of rural transportation for school children on the same free basis as rural free delivery, a law that will prevent men from lingering in the country store instead of going straight home with what they were sent for. Said one discouraged woman. "What s the use of buying more land to raise more corn to feed more hogs to buy more land?" Many women complained of excessive rates of farm loans, showing the greater number of letter writers lived on heavily mortgaged farms One woman summed up the situation by saying. "What we really need most is plenty of ready money," and another hit the nail squarely on the head when she said: "It seems to me it all depends on the kind of man we live with ' A Georgia man wrote in place of his wife, saying "Send us some cook books, the women down here use too much grease in preparing their meals." Now and then came a letter from a contented woman, but comparatively few seemed satisfied with either their surroundings or their 'men folks'"—"The Woman With the Hoe,' by Mrs George F. Richards, in National Magazine.

HIS HEART IN CALIFORNIA

Peculiar Comment of Iowa Boy That is Put on Record by Los Angeles Newspaper.

An Iowa family had located in sunny California and were very happy with their surroundings, but the mother noticed, with regret, that her young son had lost all interest in his native state, while she wished him always to remember lovingly the land of his birth. One day, calling him to her, she said:

"Son, sit down and listen, while I read you a few lines from a speech delivered at Des Moines, Iowa, by Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, pastor of Plymouth church, Brooklyn" (who had also been an Iowa boy).

The mother read: "Young man, don't leave your state thinking there is a better country in the East or West. God Almighty smiled when he made New York and Seattle but he laughed outright, with his blessing when he made Iowa"

The lad, springing to his feet, shouted, "H'm, I'll bet God just roared when he made California."—Los Angeles Times.

Serving Dinner.

With the help of this suggestion women who do their own work and have a good deal of company can arrange things so that with the aid of their tea wagons they can serve four course dinners without getting up from the table or leaving the room The cold dessert has presented many a problem as well as the hot main course One way to keep things hot after they are ready for the table is to put the serving dishes into a home-made "fireless" fixed up for the purpose. Line a large candy box with asbestos and paint it white Tightly covered, things keep hot in it for fifteen or twenty minutes, giving time to get the first course out of the way When you do not need this box to keep the main course hot, use it to keep the dessert cold. It delays the melting of ice cream, for instance.

Good Use for Idols.

A missionary in Travancore, southern India saw one morning a native coming to his house with a heavy burden. On reaching it he laid on the ground a sack. Unfastening it, he emptied it of its contents—a number of idols 'What have you brought these here for?" asked the missionary. "I don't want them." "You have taught us that we do not want them sir," said the native, "but I think they might be put to good use Could they not be melted down and made into a bell for our church?" The hint was taken. They sent the idols to a bell founder, who made them into a bell which now summons the native converts to praise and prayer.

Even Then She Didn't Smile.

The young woman had spent a busy day.

She had browbeaten 14 salespeople bullyragged a floorwalker, argued victoriously with a milliner, laid down the law to a modiste, nipped in the bud a taxi chauffeur's attempt to overcharge her, made a street car conductor stop the car in the middle of a block for her discharged her maid and engaged another, and otherwise refused to allow herself to be imposed upon.

Yet she did not smile that night when a young man begged:

"Let me be your protector through life!"

WEBSTER FAILED AS PROPHET

Great Statesman Unable to See Possibilities of the Great Territory of the West.

Daniel Webster was surely a great orator when he uttered the peroration of his reply to Hayne, and a great statesman when he formulated the Ashburton treaty, but he failed as a prophet when in the United States senate he denounced a proposition to establish a mail route from Independence Mo to the mouth of the Columbia river "What," said the godlike Daniel, "do we want with this worthless area? This region of savages and wild beasts, of deserts, of shifting sands and whirlwinds of dust, of cactus and prairie dogs? To what use could we ever hope to put these great deserts, or those endless mountain ranges, impenetrable and covered to their very base with eternal snow? What can we ever hope to do with the western coast, a coast of 3,000 miles, rock-bound, cheerless, uninviting and not a harbor on it. Sir President, I will never vote one cent from the public treasury to place the Pacific coast one inch nearer to Boston than it now is"
